David Martelleur

Photography

David Martelleur is on a mission to infinity and beyond but ... yet to be defined. First a man, then a photographer, always a skater and sometime a headache. David is one of those rare soul turning anything he touches into a miracle of bliss, an explosion of anger, your biggest burst of laughter or skimming the pit of your (s)existence.

There is no in-between, no warm water, no steady ground to stand on.

On his path to retirement, at the dawn of his new artistic career, he is offering us the full spectrum of his world wide adventures in a never-shown before Photography collection covering his latest errands.

Benoit Moureau

Installation

Benoît Moureau

Don't be fooled by the silence, by the plenitude, Benoit's works has received mad reviews over the year and he is on display in some major art and design retailers in Belgium. Active since 2002, he has shown his work all across Europe from France to Sweden. Benoit majored in interior design and bathed in skateboard culture from his youngest age, reuniting this two assets through the lens of his radical and critical vision resulted in skilfully crafted collection of furnitures made entirely of up-cycled used boards reflecting on the cultural and social symbols of his culture and integrating notions dears to him such as simplicity, character, decadence and recovery.

Bart Rampelberg

Sculpture

Riding his way through life, Bart Rampelberg is a one-of-a-kind multi-tasking soul-shaking heart-mending bone-breaking wood-bending mother fucker of an artist. He has gathered like-minded craftsmen under one roof in order to create an ambitious Art Gallery focus on skateboard culture. This is the first project of this kind in Belgium and nobody but him could have found the drive to skilfully organise and unite such an eclectic bunch.

His work reflects on this idea of assemblage and construction/ deconstruction. He cuts, slices, glues, breaks, paints and bends boards, adding even more personality to what already hold a strong emotionally value using vintage boards and found items sourced in his nearby environnement.

Pop Up Skate Art Gallery

Circa last year... Pop Up Skate Art Gallery has taken its marks in the Sainte Catherine Neighbourhood in Brussels, booming with exciting projects, a show at a time, we are building a window through skateboard culture for everyone to see. We put a huge emphasis on collaboration and personal involvement with related artists as we think it is one of the core value of who we are as artists and skateboarding aficionados. First of its kind space in Belgium, we hope to gather all the energies around this exciting project both on a commercial and cultural level.

Let the good times roll :)
